

Veal Calf Care

U.S. Veal farmers are committed to calf care!

Veal calves are humanely raised on family farms.

All licensed U.S. veal farms are family-owned.
The majority are Amish and Mennonite families.

Calves are raised in groups in well-lit barns.

- ✓ Barns protect calves from predators.
- ✓ Calves are kept comfortable and clean in well-ventilated, climate-controlled barns.
- ✓ Calves have ample space to move around & socialize with other calves.

Veal calves are fed a balanced diet.

Constant access to clean water and feed.

Enjoy meals made up of milk, grain, and fiber.

Diets are rich in iron and other nutrients.

Nutritionist-developed feed plans tailored to the calves' needs.

Strong, healthy calves are a top priority.

- ✓ Farmers monitor the health and well-being of calves every day.
- ✓ Veterinarians help to develop a plan to ensure healthy animals and prevent disease.
- ✓ Calves receive prompt veterinary care when needed.

Farmers are trained and certified in animal welfare.

Veterinarians and other experts provide best practices.

Practices are regularly reviewed and updated.

Farmers are recertified every three years.

Visit www.animalagalliance.org for more information.